ABOUT JAMES SATTERWHITE ACADEMY

The ACS James Satterwhite Academy focuses on establishing the foundations of fundamental practices for newly hired direct service staff and supervisors. The ACS Workforce Institute provides ongoing, professional skills development of direct service staff and supervisors at ACS and its many partner agencies across the child welfare and juvenile justice sectors.

ABOUT ACS WORKFORCE INSTITUTE

Trauma-Responsive and Resilience Informed Care

This learning program is for all direct service staff and supervisors working in the Division of Child Protection (DCP) and within ACS provider agencies working in Prevention, Foster Care and Juvenile Justice programs.

ABOUT This learning program introduces learners to the common language and terminology used to enhance their trauma-responsive practice. Learners will recognize how trauma and toxic stress impact a person and their experiences. Additionally, this course provides learners with foundational information on the types of traumatic responses, the Trauma Core Values, and how to infuse these principles into their work. Through thoughtful reflection time, group discussions, and practice opportunities, learners identify ways to use trauma-responsive language to effectively communicate and model collaboration with families. This is the same course being offered by the New York State Office of Children and Family Services (OCFS).

BENEFITS Learners will:

- Extend their understanding of trauma and use shared language to improve traumaresponsive practice.
- Discuss trauma and toxic stress, the science of trauma and the human stress response.
- Identify what we know about how people adapt and grow from traumatic or adverse experiences.
- Analyze the impact of trauma on service providers and identify ways of promoting selfcare in the work environment.

Understanding and Undoing Implicit Bias

Virtual ILT	A learning program for direct service staff and supervisors working in Child Welfare or Juvenile Justice.
ABOUT	This learning program engages learners with each other about implicit biases and how those biases contribute to racial disproportionality in the Child Welfare and Juvenile Justice systems — strengthening ACS's practices to support children and families starts from within the individual. During this virtual session, learners deepen their understanding and discuss the influences of implicit bias on institutional racism and structural inequity. Learners also practice strategies to reduce implicit bias and enhance equitable decision making in their work. Before attending this virtual, instructor-led training, learners must complete all course prerequisites listed below and an online pre-test.
BENEFITS	 Learners will: Understand key concepts of implicit bias and causes of racial disproportionality in Child Welfare. Have reviewed strategies to identify one's own implicit biases and to recognize implicit bias in others. Have analyzed how implicit bias affects decision-making, engagement and equitable outcomes. Be trained to identify the connection between trauma, institutional racism, structural inequity and implicit bias. Be able to employ individual strategies to reduce implicit bias.
